PROVEN SWAMP-ROOT AIDS WEAK KIDNEYS

The symptoms of kidney and bladder troubles are often very distressing and leave the system in a run-down condition. The kidneys seem to suffer most, as almost every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to more dangerous kidney troubles.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which, so many people say, soon heals and strengthens the kidneys, is a splendid kidney, liver and bladder medicine, and, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who use it.

A trial will convince anyone who may be in need of it. Better get a bottle from your nearest drug store, and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Rinehampton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

TURTLE CARRIES HIS FORT

Good Old Mother Nature Made Provision to Protect Slow Poke, Who Can't Run.

Slow Poke, the Box turtle, is a member of a rather large family if you include all his relatives in fresh water and in the sea. To distinguish him from the true turtles of the sea and the terrapins, commonly called turtles of fresh water, he is called a tortoise by some folks. He really is a sort of link between the terrapins and the true tortoise, of which the common gopher tortoise of Georgia and Florida is an example.

Slow Poke is really very wonderful in a way. None of his relatives is so well protected as he. Old Mother Nature certainly has meant that Slow Poke shall not suffer harm if she can help it. Being too slow to run from danger and not big enough to fight such enemies as might like to dine on him, he has a house, or box, within which he can shut himself in safety. The under half of his shell is hinged in the middle and, at both front and back, closes against the upper shell so closely that sometimes one wonders how Slow Poke can breathe inside. And he can hold those funny little doors closed so tightly that even with a chisel it is difficult to pry one open.

Slow Poke does not like the water, but prefers situations where open, grassy spots alternate with sparse thickets. He is considerable of a wanderer and does not dig permanent burrows like the gopher tortoise. His color varies, being black or brown above with yellow markings and, underneath, uniform black or brown, sometimes with patches of yellow. The eyes of the male are usually red, and those of the female yellow. The upper shell, or carapace, as it is named, is highly arched.

Slow Poke feeds largely on vegetable matter, and is particularly fond of berries, such as strawberries and blackberries. He will eat garden vegetables and also eats many grubs, worms and insects. The eggs are laid in a hole in soft ground or buried under leaves.

Slow Poke is found from New England to South Carolina and westward to Kansas. In the Northern states when the weather turns cold, he burrows to some depth in soft ground and there hibernates.

The word "turtle," by the way, is an old Saxon word that originally meant a dove, and so, when it first came into use, it applied to birds and not to reptiles. When America was discovered, the sailors who landed on the West Indies saw turtles for the first time. They called them "turtles," and the word slowly became "turtle."—People's Home Journal.

Couldn't Do It Justice.

The youngsters came trooping in from the party, and mother wanted to hear all about it. All the boys were loud in their praises of the food that had been provided, but little Muriel was silent and pensive.

"And how did my little girl get on?" asked the mother.

"All right," said the child mournfully, looking very sick.

"Good gracious!" cried her mother, alarmed a little. "I should have thought a pretty little girl like you would have had a lovely time!"

Muriel sighed.

"It is not much use having a pretty face if your inside's weak, is it?" she said.

The True Artist.

The artist is always a child in freshness of feeling; in unworldly delight in the things which do not add to one's estate, but which make for inward joy and peace, and that easy possession of the world which brings the sense of freedom, the right to be happy, and the faith that life is greater than its works, and a man more important than his toil. A race, like an individual, must get this consciousness of possession before the work of the day becomes imperative and absorbing. —Hamilton W. Mable.

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

A small bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thick, strong, beautiful.

Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in a few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine for a few cents at any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.—Adv.

What Determines Meat and Live-Stock Prices?

Some stock men still think that Swift & Company—and other big packers—can pay as little for live-stock as they wish.

Some consumers are still led to believe that the packers can charge as much for dressed meat as they wish.

This is not true. These prices are fixed by a law of human nature as old as human nature itself—the law of supply and demand.

When more people want meat than there is meat to be had, the scramble along the line to get it for them sends prices up. When there is more meat than there are people who want it, the scramble all along the line to get rid of it within a few days, while it is still fresh, sends prices down.

When prices of meat go up, Swift & Company not only can pay the producer more, but has to pay him more, or some other packer will.

Similarly, when prices recede all down the line Swift & Company cannot continue to pay the producer the same prices as before, and still remain in the packing business.

All the packer can do is to keep the expense of turning stock into meat at a minimum, so that the consumer can get as much as possible for his money, and the producer as much as possible for his live-stock.

Thanks to its splendid plants, modern methods, branch houses, car routes, fleet of refrigerator cars, experience and organization, Swift & Company is able to pay for live cattle 90 per cent of what it receives for beef and by-products, and to cover expense of production and distribution, as well as its profit (a small fraction of a cent per pound), out of the other 10 per cent.
